Dogzilla

It was summer in the city of Mousopolis. The mice were gathered for a (cookout). The food was on the grill (and) the mice were happy. The smells (from) the cookout filled the air. Then (the) ground began to shake. A strange (sniffing) sound was heard. A big monster (came) out of a nearby crater to (join) the cookout: Dogzilla!

The Big Cheese (sent) his army to stop the monster. (They) were very brave until Dogzilla breathed (on) them. Then they all ran away (as) fast as their little legs could (carry) them! The beast ate all of (the) food from their cookout. And then (she) started doing things that dogs like (to) do. She chased cars – right off (the) road! She chewed things – and the (stores) they were sold in! She had (to) be stopped.

The Big Cheese didn't (t) know what to do. He went (to) an expert for help. The expert (said) that they had to scare Dogzilla (out) of town. So the mice decided (to) give Dogzilla something that all dogs (fear): a bath! They hit the beast (with) lots of soap and warm water. (Dogzilla) quickly ran back to her crater (in) shock!

The mice were happy again. (When) they held their cookout the next (summer), they were sure Dogzilla would not (return). They were right about the beast, (but) there was one thing they had (not) thought of . . . puppies!

Dogzilla

It was summer in the city of Mousopolis. The mice were gathered for a (insect, monthly, cookout). The food was on the grill (quietly, and, met) the mice were happy. The smells (wearily, squealing, from) the cookout filled the air. Then (the, distinct, scatter) ground began to shake. A strange (band, sniffing, loss) sound was heard. A big monster (spoken, soft, came) out of a nearby crater to (and, different, join) the cookout: Dogzilla!

The Big Cheese (sent, change, quality) his army to stop the monster. (Level, Food, They) were very brave until Dogzilla breathed (collect, music, on) them. Then they all ran away (bee, division, as) fast as their little legs could (market, perform, carry) them! The beast ate all of (obediently, spicy, the) food from their cookout. And then (cow, she, goat) started doing things that dogs like (swift, to, greasy) do. She chased cars – right off (clean, hastily, the) road! She chewed things – and the (form, stores, crooked) they were sold in! She had (curve, smash, to) be stopped.

The Big Cheese didn't (clear, cloudy, t) know what to do. He went (itself, rain, to) an expert for help. The expert (annoy, exist, said) that they had to scare Dogzilla (crawl, out, shallow) of town. So the mice decided (throat, heart, to) give Dogzilla something that all dogs (but, er, fear): a bath! They hit the beast (with, fight, vessel) lots of soap and warm water. (Dogzilla, Analyze, Tomorrow) quickly ran back to her crater (came, repulsive, in) shock!

The mice were happy again. (Happily, Curve, When) they held their cookout the next (summer, way, screeching), they were sure Dogzilla would not (was, pump, return). They were right about the beast, (average, relax, but) there was one thing they had (not, window, wicked) thought of . . . puppies!
