The Garden of Abdul Gasazi

One day, Miss Hester left her dog Fritz with Alan Mitz to watch. All morning Alan tried to keep (Fritz) from chewing the furniture. Then it (was) time for Fritz's afternoon walk.

(Fritz) led Alan to a door to (a) garden. A sign near the door (read), "No Dogs in This Garden. Abdul (Gasazi), Magician." As Alan turned away, Fritz (pulled) hard, broke his leash, and ran (into) the garden.

Alan chased after Fritz, (but) he could not catch him. Soon, (Alan) found a big house. At the (big) house, Alan met a big man: (Mr.) Gasazi. Alan told Mr. Gasazi that (he) was sorry that Fritz ran into (his) garden. Could he please have Fritz (back)? Mr. Gasazi said that he could (have) Fritz, but that Fritz was no (longer) a dog. Mr. Gasazi had turned (Fritz) into a duck!

Sadly, Alan picked (up) the duck and headed home. But (before) he could get very far, the (wind) blew off his hat. The duck (slipped) out of his arms, caught the (hat) in its mouth, and flew up (into) the sky!

As Alan walked slowly (home), he thought Fritz was gone for (sure). But when he got to Miss (Hester)'s house, Fritz was there and (he) was a dog again! Miss Hester (told) Alan that Mr. Gasazi must have (been) teasing him. But after Alan left, (Miss) Hester found Fritz chewing on Alan's (s) hat.

The Garden of Abdul Gasazi

One day, Miss Hester left her dog Fritz with Alan Mitz to watch. All morning Alan tried to keep (Fritz, land, company) from chewing the furniture. Then it (was, clever, puzzled) time for Fritz's afternoon walk.

(Fritz, Me, Group) led Alan to a door to (a, cork, suspiciously) garden. A sign near the door (read, lay, tempt), "No Dogs in This Garden. Abdul (summer, detect, Gasazi), Magician." As Alan turned away, Fritz (average, uptight, pulled) hard, broke his leash, and ran (into, fork, flower) the garden.

Alan chased after Fritz, (but, advertisement, promptly) he could not catch him. Soon, (Alan, foot, grass) found a big house. At the (seed, big, bright) house, Alan met a big man: (chose, Mr, below). Gasazi. Alan told Mr. Gasazi that (troubled, he, I) was sorry that Fritz ran into (irritably, country, his) garden. Could he please have Fritz (fantastic, back, road)? Mr. Gasazi said that he could (clever, have, dare) Fritz, but that Fritz was no (did, wooden, longer) a dog. Mr. Gasazi had turned (Fritz, size, enthusiastic) into a duck!

Sadly, Alan picked (salty, really, up) the duck and headed home. But (order, curious, before) he could get very far, the (behind, wind, cheese) blew off his hat. The duck (part, slipped, tightly) out of his arms, caught the (fork, uh, hat) in its mouth, and flew up (into, dull, plate) the sky!

As Alan walked slowly (silky, though, home), he thought Fritz was gone for (sure, top, over). But when he got to Miss (Hester, religion, grow)'s house, Fritz was there and (agreeable, he, someone) was a dog again! Miss Hester (river, told, dirty) Alan that Mr. Gasazi must have (it, let, been) teasing him. But after Alan left, (occur, splendid, Miss) Hester found Fritz chewing on Alan's (an, behave, s) hat.
