

Student/Classroom: _____ Examiner: _____ Assessment Date: _____

Amelia Earhart

Amelia Earhart: First Lady of Flight is the biography of the first person to attempt to fly around the world. Amelia Earhart's famous flight began (on) June 1, 1937. Amelia left Miami, Florida, with (Fred) Noonan, her navigator, and headed east. (In) one month, they made thirty stops (on) five continents. At each stop they (rested), refueled, and sent home reports of (their) progress.

On July 2, Amelia and Fred (took) off From New Guinea for tiny (Howland) Island in the Pacific Ocean. It (was) the most dangerous part of the (trip). Radio operators on a nearby ship (helped) to guide the plane. But the (ship)'s crew had a hard time (hearing) Amelia's radio reports. She said (the) plane was low on gas. The (crew) heard from her for the last (time) at 8:47 A.M.

What followed was (the) largest sea search in the history (of) the U.S. Navy. Yet after (many) days of searching, nothing was found.

(Amelia)'s disappearance is one of the (biggest) mysteries of the twentieth century. There (are) many theories about what happened. The (government) says that the plane ran out (of) gas and crashed at sea. But (some) radio operators say they heard messages (indicating) that Amelia and Fred were still (alive). Some people think the plane flew (off) course on purpose to spy on (the) Japanese. Some think the Japanese took (Amelia) and Fred prisoner. A few even (think) she survived the war and returned (to) the United States under a different (name). We may never know for sure, (but) the search for clues continues.

Readability Estimation

Formula	Value
Dale-Chall	4

--

Amelia Earhart

Amelia Earhart: First Lady of Flight is the biography of the first person to attempt to fly around the world. Amelia Earhart's famous flight began (belief, contain, on) June 1, 1937. Amelia left Miami, Florida, with (woman, Fred, brave) Noonan, her navigator, and headed east. (In, Teaching, Division) one month, they made thirty stops (error, sheep, on) five continents. At each stop they (rested, saw, spoken), refueled, and sent home reports of (funny, ornament, their) progress.

On July 2, Amelia and Fred (hastily, done, took) off From New Guinea for tiny (not, Howland, prose) Island in the Pacific Ocean. It (comfort, was, kettle) the most dangerous part of the (trip, frantic, scratchy). Radio operators on a nearby ship (soak, helped, ice) to guide the plane. But the (encourage, ship, unusual)'s crew had a hard time (envious, cheat, hearing) Amelia's radio reports. She said (angle, the, busy) plane was low on gas. The (crew, back, arrive) heard from her for the last (stage, too, time) at 8:47 A.M.

What followed was (charming, money, the) largest sea search in the history (go, of, person) the U.S. Navy. Yet after (mad, lazily, many) days of searching, nothing was found.

(Business, Were, Amelia)'s disappearance is one of the (deliver, biggest, had) mysteries of the twentieth century. There (he, are, engine) many theories about what happened. The (government, history, poison) says that the plane ran out (tired, of, roof) gas and crashed at sea. But (trouble, some, helpful) radio operators say they heard messages (everybody, indicating, worried) that Amelia and Fred were still (field, hot, alive). Some people think the plane flew (off, suck, boiling) course on purpose to spy on (stocking, the, gently) Japanese. Some think the Japanese took (Amelia, stomach, fancy) and Fred prisoner. A few even (joyously, cheerful, think) she survived the war and returned (famous, to, glove) the United States under a different (name, safely, monkey). We may never know for sure, (rhythm, but, purring) the search for clues continues.