

GRADE 5.3.1 Wilson Fluency

And Then What Happened, Paul Revere?

plen	con	un	tur	cry	oy	trav	dis
ty	stant	load	bles	ing	sters	vel	plays

plenty	constantly	unloading	turtles
crying	oysters	traveling	displays

In Boston there was always plenty to see. Ships were constantly coming and going, unloading everything from turtles to chandeliers. Street vendors were constantly crying their wares----everything from fever pills to hair oil to oysters. From time to time there were traveling acrobats, performing monkeys, parades, firework displays, and fistfights.

In Boston there was always plenty to see. Ships were constantly coming and going, unloading everything from turtles to chandeliers. Street vendors were constantly crying their wares----everything from fever pills to hair oil to oysters. From time to time there were traveling acrobats, performing monkeys, parades, firework displays, and fistfights.

